Table of Contents

1. LISTEN UP!
2. Chapter 1
3. Chapter 2
4. Chapter 3
5. Chapter 4
6. Chapter 5
7. Chapter 6
8. Chapter 7
9. Chapter 8
10. Chapter 9
11. Chapter 10
12. Chapter 11
13. Chapter 12
14. Chapter 13
15. Chapter 14
16. Thank you

LISTEN UP!

[image]

Inspired by multipal fanfics, and the comic above, I have decided to write this fanfic! And Y'all ready know this, but....

First: i do not own ROTG. Dreamworks does.

Second: I'm not the best writer. My spelling isn't the best and my grammar needs work.

Third: I'm making this up as I go along. So sometimes the story might feel like it doesn't make since.

Forth: Unless I say otherwise, none of the artwork shown is mine, except for one peice I personally made.

Fifth: When this is in bold and in () that means I, the author, is speaking.

Chapter 1

It was a cold winter day, and the guardians were at the North Pole preparing for this year's Christmas. It was going to be a glorious one, due to the recent defeat of Pitch Black, the Boogeyman.

Santa was checking his list, reading it as fast as he could.

"Didn't you already check it twice?" The tooth fairy (Tooth) asked.

"You didn't really think I only check it twice, did you?" Santa (North), said chuckling.

Bunnymund (Bunny) popped out of a portal. "Sorry I'm late mates!" he said in his thick australian accent.

"Where were you?" Tooth asked.

"Some squirrels got into the burrow, I had to clean them out. Where's Jack?"

"I sent him to go stir up a nice sot snow for Christmas." North said. "White Christmases are perfect."

"I think sunny Easters are better!" said Bunny.

The Sandman (Sandy) walked in just as North and Bunny got into a heated debate on which holiday is better. He made a face that said, "Not this again."

Tooth flew over to him and giggled. She looked out the window, and noticed it wasn't snowing.

Jack Frost must be slacking off again, she thought. "Sandy, you try and calm these two down. I'm gonna go and find Jack!" she flew out the open window, and Sandy sighed as he tried to stop the two from fighting.

****

Tooth found Jack Frost sitting in a tree, making tiny snowflakes, and throwing them down. She snuck up behind him and pushed him off the tree. "BOO!" she shouted

"GAH!" he landed in the snow. "Tooth!"

Tooth laughed, and sat in the tree. Jack flew up to her. "Ha Ha, very funny." he said sarcastically.

"I thought you liked a good joke!" Tooth smiled. Jack smiled back, showing his pearly white teeth.

So shiny and white, Tooth thought. Even in his past life they were incredible! "Aren't you supposed to be making a little snow storm?" she asked.

"Eh," Jack shrugged. "There's no rush."

"Christmas is in two days! There kinda is!"

Jack chuckled. "I can make a snow storm in ten seconds flat. I have a little time." he picked up a snowball, and threw it down at the town nearby. It landed right in the center of a billboard.

"I have to get back to the North Pole," Tooth said, standing up. "Make the storm soon,Okay?"

"Ok," Jack said.

Jack looked down at the town near him. It was the town where Jamie lived. He could never let Jamie see him anymore, unless on a special occasion. He flew down into town anyway. He ran his hands against the walls of shops and houses as he flew, thick layer of frost appearing on them.

May as well start, Jack Frost thought, and started making the storm.

He flew up into the clouds, and pointed his staff at the sky. A huge explosion of snow appeared, and rained into the clouds. The clouds turned gray as they filled with the snow. The clouds lowered from the sky and onto the town, and oe by one, snowflakes fell onto it. More and more, until it was a flurry of Christmas wonder.

Jack smirked happily at his masterpiece, and then flew up and away for the north pole

Chapter 2

The next day was Christmas eve, and all the guardians were getting ready to deliver presents. Bunny was helping paint last minute made gifts, Sandy was wrapping them, North was telling them was gifts went where, Tooth was putting the gifts in the big sack, and Jack was keeping his storm fresh, and from fizzling out.

"Remember Bunny," North said. "Keep painting things red. No blue!"

"Yeah, yeah," Bunny said. He looked at the blue paint longingly.

"Jack, can you help me with this present?" Tooth was struggling to put a big heavy box in the sack.

"Oh, sure," Jack smiled, and flew down from the window.

Together, the lifted the present and put it in the sack.

"Hey Jack?" Tooth whispered.

"Why are you whispering?"

"Follow me!" she pulled him outside. "Be right back!" she called to the others.

******

"What is it, Tooth?" Jack asked.

"I know it's only Christmas eve, but I just can't wait to give you your present!"

"Who Whoa Whoa," Jack said. "You got me a Christmas present?"

"Yes!" Tooth said. She pulled out a small blue box.

"Are you sure we shouldn't wait until Christmas?"

"I can't wait any longer!" she handed him the box.

Jack Frost slowly opened it, and inside were three pearly white teeth. "Teeth?"

"Not just any teeth," Tooth said. "Your teeth! I dug around and found some!"

Jack gasped. "Our...found some?"

"Yes! Now you can look at past memories!"

"Thank you..." Jack said, tears in his eyes. "Thank you thank you thank you!" He hugged the Tooth Fairy tight.

"Your welcome!" Tooth weazed out.

The two walked back in to continue their duties.

North, Sandy and Bunny looked at them as they entered.

"You just had to give it to him early," Bunny smirked.

"I just couldn't wait!" Tooth said.

Chapter 3

The night air was crisp as Santa's magical sleigh flew threw the sky. The wind was cold, and everyone but Jack and North was shivering.

"Don't blame me," Jack said. "North was the one that asked for a white Christmas!"

Sandy, Tooth, and Bunny smirked at him.

"Here's the first house!" North said. "You're up Jack!" he handed Jack a present.

Jack jumped off the sleigh, and into the chimney. His cold aura put out the fire, and he stepped into the living room.

There was a living pine tree with a fragile angel ornament on the top. There were cookies and milk laid out for Santa Clause. Jack picked up a snickerdoodle, and took a bite. It tasted pretty good. He put one in his pocket to give to North.

"Rrrrnggg..."

Jack turned to the stairs. Someone was groaning from upstairs. Jack went upstairs to investigate. He searched until he opened a door, to find a child sleeping. The child tossed and turned, groaning. Jack noticed, floating above him, was a bundle of blank dream sand.

"That's not right," Jack said, getting closer.

He remembered what the Bogeyman had said. Pitch Black's voice rang in his ears. "There will always be fear," it said.

"Jack!" Bunny appeared in the child's window. "Hurry up!"

"Right!" Jack said, going downstairs and placing the gift under the tree and leaving.

"What took so long?"North asked.

Jack handed him the cookie. "I just thought I saw something,"

"What?" Tooth asked.

"Black....Black dream sand,"

North pulled the sleigh to a halt.

"What was that mate?!" Bunny asked

"I thought I saw pitch black's nightmare sand," Jack said.

"You thought?" North asked. "Did you, or didn't you?"

"OK! I did!" Jack said. "There was a groaning noise, so I went to see what was up, and I saw nightmare sand giving a child a nightmare!"

"Then that means..." Tooth gasped.

Sandy made an explanation point out of sand that floated above his head.

"Pitch might has returned." Bunny said.

North whipped his reindeer and started throwing presents down chimneys while moving almost faster than sound.

"What are you doing?!" Tooth asked.

"We need to get this done as soon as possible!" North said. "We have to get back to the North Pole as soon as possible and figure this out!"

"Thank goodness you investigated Jack!" Tooth said.

****

The sun rose, bringing a joyful Christmas to children all over the world. But in the North pole, it was anything but joyful. Worry was in the air as the guardians struggled to find out if Pitch had returned or not.

Just then, a freezing chill fell onto the room.

"Jack! Stop that!" Bunny said.

"I'm not doing that," Jack said.

"Guys..." Tooth pointed to the Globe, where a dark figure stood.

"Pitch...." North sneered.

"Why hello, guardians," Pitch's sharp teeth shined as he smirked. "Guess who's back, stronger than ever?" he laghed, and flew out of the building in a shadow.

"Don't let him escape!" North shouted, as the gang ran after him.

Chapter 4

[image]

Behold! My horrid art!

Outside, a tsunami of shadows and darkness swirled around with pitch atop. "Why don't we play a game?"

Shadows surrounded everyone, and attacked. The guardians fought back with all their might, trying to destroy the nightmares and get to Pitch.

"Show yourself!" Bunny shouted.

"And why would I do that?" Pitch's voice echoed. "I do my best fighting while in the shadows,"

A shadow stallion bucked Bunny in the face, and he fell to the hard icy ground.

"We're not scared of you Pitch!" Tooth shouted.

"Oh I know that," Pitch's shadow appeared in front of them. "But one of you is," he pointed to Sandy. "Do you remember Sandy? The last time you were surrounded by shadows?"

"Everybody! Protect Sandy!" North shouted. "Jack! Go for Pitch!"

Jack stood in front of Pitch, neither making a move, waiting for the othe to strike first. A bow appeared in Pitch's hands, and he readied to shoot. "Thank you guardians," he said. "For giving me exactly what I came for."

Jack's eyes widen, and he tried to fly away as Pitch let the arrow go. The arrow flew faster than Jack, and went straight into him.

"JACK!" The gardens screamed.

Jack fell to his knees, as black sand consumed him. Pitch raised his hands, and shadows surrounded him, keeping the guardians out. The sand twisted and turned and morphed around Jack until finally, it stopped.

"Jack," Pitch smile. "Wake up,"

Jack lifted his head and opened his eyes. His white hair was now a dark black, his eyes were a rich purple, and his hoodie was gray.

"Jack?" Tooth called.

Jack stood up, his expression soulless. In fact, everything about him now lacked a soul. He just stood there.

Pitch landed behind him.

"Mate look out!" Bunny cired.

Jack didn't move. Pitch put his hands on Jack's shoulders, and put a hand on his cheek seductively.

"Jack" Tooth tried to fly to him, but Bunny blocked her.

"No! He's done something to him!" Bunny said.

Pitch laughed, and shadows surrounded them once more.

"Jack!" the guardian's cried. They tried to break through, but they couldn't!

When it cleared, Jack and Pitch were gone.

Chapter 5

Pitch Black and Jack Frost walked through Pitch's lair.

"Welcome Jack," Pitch said. "Welcome home."

Jack said nothing. He just kept looking forward.

"Nothing? No comments?" Pitch asked.

Jack said nothing.

"SAY SOMETHING! I COMMAND YOU!"

"Sister," he said.

"What?"

"Sister."

"Ah, you wish to see your sister again," Pitch understood. "I'm sorry my boy. I can only create nightmares. Unless you want a demon version of our sister"

Jack shook his head. He pulled out the small box Tooth had given him, and held it out.

Pitch took it, and looked inside. "Ah," he said. "Now these I can work with!"

Jack and Pitch walked over to a table, where materials for nightmare making were. Pitch took one of the teeth, and smashed it to dust(Jack flinched at that). Then, he put the dust in the bowl. He then added some nightmare dust. He put his hands in it, and started to shape it. When he was done, Jack's little sister stood.

"Jack," she smiled.

Jack's should came back to his eyes has he ran to his sister and hugged her tight, tears in his eyes.

"Jack, wanna go play?" his sister asked.

Jack nodded. He wanted nothing more

Just then his sister disappeared, and Pitch stood there. "If you want to see her again, you will do as I say." he said

Jack kneeled before him.

"Good. You can start by speaking a little!"

****

Jack and Pitch stood in front of Pitch's giant globe.

"Do you see those little lights?" Pitch asked.

Jack nodded. "Yes master,"

"Everyone of those lights is a child who believes in the Tooth fairy, Santa Clause, and Bunnymund. Everyone of those children do not believe in us."

That's odd, Jack thought. I could of sworn a few believed in me.

"Tonight, most of those children will be putting teeth under their pillows waiting for the tooth fairies to come and get them. We're going to stop that from happening."

"Yes master," Jack said.

Pitch whistled, and a group of nightmare stallions trotted up to them. Their whinnying was terrifying. Jack flew up and sat upon one.

"Go Jack," Pitch said, smirking. "Bring them anything but fun!"

Chapter 6

The guardians were in Bunnymund's burrow, panicking.

"What do we do? What do we do? What do we do?" Tooth flew around in a frenzy.

Sandy paced back and forth.

North and Bunny argued over who's fault it was that Jack was captured.

"It was your idea to protect Sandy!" Bunny said."You went along with the idea!" North said.

Sandy got in between them. He made an arrow above his head pointing to him.

"Sandy are you saying it's your fault?" oth asked.

Sandy nodded.

"Guys! Stop it!" Tooth said. "It was all our fault! We protected Sandy and left Jack all alone! And Sandy had a right to be protected."

Three fairies all of a sudden burst into the burrow.

"Guys, what is it?" Tooth asked.

The fairies chittered nervously. Tooth gasped.

"What is it mate?" Bunny asked.

"The fairies are worried that now that Pitch is back, he'll try and steal the teeth from the children again!" Tooth explained. "We have to get to Tooth palace!"

******

The guardians arrived at Tooth Palace. The fairies were everywhere, snatching teeth.

"Faires!" Tooth shouted in a booming voice. "What do you think you're doing?!"

The fairies chittered in unison.

"What are they saying?" North asked.

"They say they're taking the teeth to a safer spot," Tooth said. "But this is the safest spot!"

"Is it?" said a voice.

The group turned around, but there was nothing behind them.

The Fairies started to panic, grabbing as many teeth boxes as possible and flying everywhere. All of a sudden, a wave of black nightmare sand burst through the entrance! It flooded the Tooth palace, capturing the fairies and teeth.

"Not this time!" Tooth shouted. She dove into the sand, rescue fairies and teeth, the other guardians doing the same.

They couldn't rescue everyone and everything,but they ended up rescuing a couple boxes of teeth, and four fairs, including Babytooth.

"Show yourself Pitch!" North shouted.

A trotting sound came from the entrance, and a group of nightmare horses entered, with Jack Frost riding on one of them. Jack Frost said nothing. He just looked at them with his soulless purple eyes.

Sandy gasped silently, North looked suspicious along with Bunny, and Tooth and the fairies got scared.

"Jack?" Tooth called out again.

Jack said nothing.

"Jack, what has Pitch done to you?" North asked.

Jack pointed at them with his staff, and the nightmares attacked.

They bucked, bit, and hit, and the guardians fought back hard.

Tooth flew over the Nightmares, and over to Jack. "Jack you have to stop this! Your a guardian!"

Jack just kept looking forward. As if he didn't hear her.

"Jack, say something!" Tooth was almost crying.

Jack looked at her, then punched her. She fell to the ground, but grabbed onto to Jack pulling him down with her.

Jack's eyes had anger in them, and he tackled her. The fairies saw that tooth was in trouble, and started to poke Jack. Jack smacked them aside with his staff, and then blasted ice at Tooth.

"Tooth!" Bunny, Sandy, and North ran to her.

They cradled her wounded body in their arms.

"Jack, what have our done?" North gasped.

Jack stood above them. He whistled, and the nightmares returned to him. He mounted one, and left.

"What is Jack turning into?" Bunny mumbled

Tooth awoke with a gasp. She was back at the pole.

"She's alive!" Bunny North and Sandy an to her.

"Did...did we rescue Jack?" she asked.

North shook his head. "We...we did not.

"Yeah," Bunny said. "Because he left when you were injured. We had to get you to safety."

Sandy made a Jack Frost out of Sand with devil horns.

"Sandy, what do you mean?" Tooth asked

"We think Jack's gone evil," Bunny said.

"But its not his fault!" North said. "We think Pitch did something to him. Don't worry. We're gonna make things right."

Chapter 7

"Jack!" Jack's little sister beamed.

Jack Frost looked down at his little sister and smiled softly.

"Jack! Will you play wil me?"

Jack nodded, and led her her to a clear area in Pitch's lair. A ball appeared in his sister's hand, and she tossed it to him. Jack and his sister played for while.

"Jack, I love you," His sister hugged him.

Jack had tears in his eyes and he hugged her as tight as possible. But she vanished before he could say anything t her.

"That's enough for today," Pitch said.

The joy left Jack's eyes, and he went back to being a soulless being. He bowed down. "What is my next task master?"

Pitch put a hand on Jack's shoulder and led him to the globe.

"No lights have gone out," Pitch said angrily. "So we're going to make them." he handed Jack a jar of nightmare sand. "In this jar is a nightmare I designed myself. A dream that will tell every child that every guardian never existed. Sprinkle it into the children's dreams tonight."

"Yes master," Jack said.

****

Jack entered the room of a child. A child he swear he knew from somewhere. On the wall was a drawing of the child of a sled. The child was....Jamie. But Jack didn't recognize him. In fact he knew no one but Pitch, and his sister.

Jack looked at Jamie's dream. It was him and his sister, Sophie playing on a beach. And the guardians were with them! Jack took out the jar, and sprinkled some dark sand onto the dream. The dream instantly erased the guardians from it, and Jamie started to toss and turn.

Jack was about to leave when Jamie burst awake, breathing hard. He noticed Jack Frost, about to jump out his window.

"Jack Frost!" he smiled. He jumped out of bed and hugged him. "Jack...I just had a nightmare! Does this mean Pitch is back?"

Jack Frost pushed Jamie off him, and came into the light. Jamie gasped at Jack's new look. "Jack, what happened to your...everything?"

Jack ignored him, and kept off into the night.

Chapter 8

"Wait Wait! So you all had the same nightmare?" Jamie asked his friends.

"Yeah," Cupcake said. "I didn't like it that much."

"Does this mean Pitch is back?" Cameron asked.

"Does the Sandman know?" (I don't know the name of this character so let's just call her Red.) Red asked.

"I don't know, but listen to this!" Jamie said. "I saw Jack last night!"

"Really?" Jamie's friend's asked.

"Yes! But he looked...different. His eyes were purple, his hoodie was gray and his hair was..."he gasped.

"What?" Cupcake asked.

"His hair was pitch black!" Jamie said.

"You don't think..." Red asked.

"No way!" Cameron 's twin gasped.

"Do the guardians know?" Cupcake asked.

"Don't think so, but we have to get the news to them!" Jamie said. "And I have an idea on how to do it!"

****

"Jamie, are you sure this is a good idea?" Red asked.

"Positive," Jamie said.

"Ok," Cameron said. "Cupcake, do it."

Cupcake walked up to Jamie, and punched in it the cheek. A tooth, popped out, and sprawled onto the concrete.

"Yes!" Jamie cheered, holding his cheek in pain. He picked up the tooth. "Thanks Cupcake," Cupcake smiled and shrugged.

"How do we know the tooth fairy will even come?" Cameron's twin asked. "Weren't they disappearing last time?"

"I'm sure. We've met her before, so we're pretty special! They have to remember us!" Jamie said. "I'll tell you if it worked tomorrow."

"Ok, bye Jamie!" Red said.

The four others left, and Jamie ran inside.

Jamie burst into his room, and started to write a note. He tapped his Tooth to it, and placed it under his pillow. Then, he got in his PJ's and went to bed.

"Please," he whispered. "Let this work..."

Chapter 9

The guardians rushed around the pole, trying to think of ways to bring Jack Frost back. Tooth was on the edge of tears. She burst into them.

"Tooth What's wrong?" Bunny went to comfort her

"I miss him!" she cried out. "And now he might be gone forever!"

Sandy put a hand on her shoulder.

"It's gonna be OK," North said. "We're gonna fix him."

"But what if we don't?" she bawled. "We can't even find him!"

A chattering noise interrupted Tooth, and Babytooth came flying in.

"Babytooth!" they gasped.

She chittered quickly.

Sandman made a question mark above his head.

"She says Jamie has lost a tooth!"" Tooth gasped, smiling a little. "I have to go get it!"

"Whoa, Whoa," Bunny stopped her. "Why can't the little fairies do it?"

"We can't rsk anymore of the fairies being captured. I'm the only one big enough to defend myself. And Jamie needs to keep believing." she flew out the window.

****

Tooth crawled into Jamie's window. A dream of gold and floated above his head. It was hm and Jack playing in the sand. Tooth teared up a little. She wanted that for him so badly.

Tooth crouched down and looked under his pillow. There was a piece of paper under it. Tooth took it and opened it:

Dear Tooth Fairy,

I have very important info to tell you ! PLease wake me up!

-Jamie

Tooth gasped, and shook Jamie awake. Jamie rubbed his eyes and gasped.

"You got my note!" he cheered.

"Yes!" Tooth said. "What is it?"

"I had a nightmare a few nights ago, and I think Pitch is back! And that's not all! Jack was in my room that night, and he looked different."

Tooth gasped. "He was here?! What was he doing??!"

"I don't know," Jamie said. "He just...left me. But he left this!" Jamie walked over to his desk, and picked up a small blue box.

"This was my christmas gift to him!" Tooth gasped.

"What was it?"

"Some of his teeth,"

"Teeth?"

"Teeth hold memories, Jamie. Jack used to have a past life before he was a guardian. And he has trouble remembering it. So I gave him these! And now that we have them back, we can get Jack back!"

"What do you mean get Jack back?"

Tooth sighed. "We think Pitch has turned Jack evil. In fact, we know he has."

Jamie gasped, tears in his eyes.

"But we're gonna get him back! With these," she held up a pearly white tooth.

Chapter 10

"What is taking Tooth so long?" North asked.

"Yeah, it can't take that long to get to Jamie's, can it?" Bunny asked.

Sandy made a contemplating face.

Suddenly, the air went cold. Almost as cold as death.

The three turned around, and saw Pitch standing on the globe.And next to him, was Jack Frost!

"Why hello guardians," Pitch smiled his wicked smile.

"Pitch!" North shouted. "Let Jack go!"

"What?" Putch laughed. "It's not like I'm forcing him to stay with me. I simply have something he wants!"

"LIAR!" Bunny shouted, and launched himself at the two.

Jack stepped forward, and pointed his staff. Ice shot out of it, striking Bunny. Bunny fell to the floor.

Sandy stepped forward. He made a ball of sand, and threw it at Jack. It hit Jack in the head, and he collapsed. He tumbled off the globe, and onto the floor.

"Jack!" Pitch jumped down and picked him up and in his arms.

"Nice thinking Sandy!" North said. "Give us Jack!"

"Never!" Pitch shouted as he disappeared with Jack.

*****

A portal opened, and Tooth flew threw...holding Jamie's hand!

"Tooth!" North gasped. "You brought him here?!"

"Just hear me out!" Tooth said. She held out the box.

"Aren't those jack's teeth?" Bunny asked.

"We can use them and Jamie to remind Jack of who he really is!"

"Tooth, there's something you should know," North said. "Pitch and Jack Frost were here."

"What?" Tooth gasped, and held Jamie's hand tighter.

"He says he's not keeping Jack there-which is obviously a lie-"

"No doubt!"

"That's not all," Bunny said. "Pitch says he has something Jack wants."

"What could Pitch possibly have that we don't?" Jamie asked.

"We don't know," Bunny said.

"Wait, you said Jack doesn't remember much of his past life, right?" Jamie asked.

"Yeah," Tooth said.

"Well, maybe Pitch has something from his past life?"

Sandy shook his head in disbelief.

"Wait, he might be right! Look in the box: There were three, but now there's only two!"

North gasped. "How can we possibly compete with Pitch now? There's nothing Jack wants more than his past life!"

"How do you know that?" Bunny asked.

"Like Pitch knows everyone's greatest fear, I know what people want most in the world."

"What does he want?"

North paused.

"He wants his sister back."

Chapter 11

Jack Frost awoke to see Pitch's face. Jack sat up and rubbed his head.

"Are you alright?" Pitch asked.

Jack nodded.

"You were injured from your fall," Pitch said, scooping up some nightmare sand from a bowl. "I need to heal you." he threw the sand at Jack, and it surrounded him.

The sand seeped into his skin, healing his wounds, but turning him more evil nevertheless. Jack gasped in pain, but calmed down once the sand stopped. His eyes were even richer of a purple, which didn't seem possible before.

"Jack," Pitch said. "Tomorrow we shall attack the guardians at the pole. I shall distract them while you create a snow storm so big, everyone around the world shall fear it!"

Jack nodded. "Yes master. May I ask one thing?"

"Indeed,"

"When this is all over, can me and my sister go home? And be together? Forever?"

"I'll need more of your teeth to bring back your old home,"

Jack dug into his pockets, but nothing was there! Horror came to his face, and he fell to his knees.

"They're gone?!" Pitch shouted. "Oh well. We'll just have to get them back!"

****

Pitch and Jack Frost appeared on top of the Guardian's globe.

"Pitch," the guardians looked furious. "No more hiding," Tooth yelled.

"Let's finish this!" Bunny said.

Pitch looked at Jack, and Jack nodded. Jack vanished.

"Jack!" North shouted.

"This is between you and me. Not him." Pitch said. He raised his hands and shadow mares appeared. They rained down on the guardians. The guardians practically slaughtered the horses.

Jamie-who was hiding in the corner-scared, ran outside in hopes of escaping. He slammed the doors behind him, trying not to let the nightmares escape to.

He gasped: He saw Jack Frost with his stick in the air, summoning a powerful storm.

"Jack!"

Jack turned around, and aimed his staff. His eyes widened when he saw it was a child he was looking at.

"Jack, it's me!" Jamie said. "Jamie!" he smiled.

Jack said nothing. He raised his staff again, and continued making the storm.

"Jack! Please stop!" Jamie said. "This storm is really big! It could hurt people!"

"That's the point," Jack spit out.

Jamie gasped, and ran back inside.

****

Meanwhile, inside, the nightmares were gone, and Pitch was fighting the guardians with his bare hands.

"You can't defeat me!" Pitch smiled. "Fear is an motion! It's eternal!"

"That may be so," Tooth kicked him, and he fell to the ground. "But we will always be here to fight it!"

"JACK!" Pitch shouted.

In seconds, Jack burst threw the doors, ran to Tooth, and was holding her off the ground by her neck.

"J-Jack!" Tooth choked out.

Jack glared at her with hatred. "Where are my teeth?!"

"Right here!" Bunny held up a tooth, and smashed it on the ground.

Jack gasped. "NO!"

"Let Tooth go, or I smash the last one!" Bunny held u the last tooth.

Jack dropped Tooth, and she flew away to North and hid behind him.

Jack flew over to Bunny and tackled him. He pried the tooth from Bunny's hand, and put it in his pocket. He was about to get up, when he heard Pitch whisper in his ear: "Destroy him Jack. He never liked you anyway..."

Jack backed away, and allowed Bunny to stand. Then, when Bunny was about to strike, he pointed his staff, and froze his feet to the ground. Bunny screamed. The ice made its way up his body, and soon, Bunny would be nothing but a statue!

"Jack stop!" Tooth cried, and tried to pull Jack away. "Bunnymund's your friend!"

North joined in. "We all are!"

Sandman tried to throw some dream sand at Jack, but Jack dodged it.

"Jack, mate!" Bunny cried. "Please come back to us!"

"He can't hear you!" pitch said. "He only listens to me and he listens to his sister!"

Jamie stood in front of Jack, and blocked the ice by having it hit himself! "Jack your my best friend! You love having fun!"

Jack looked up for a second. Fun, he thought. Was any of what he had been doing recently fun?

"Looks like we've got his attention! Keep going!" North said.

"Fun!" Jamie said. "Sledding down a snowy hill! Building Snowmen! Snowball fighting! But most of all its having fun with the people you love! And I love you Jack! We can have fun again if you just stop this!"

Jack had tears in his eyes. He wanted that. He wanted it more than anything. He dropped his staff and fell to his knees. "Help me..."he whispered just loud enough at the guardians could hear him. "Please....fix me!" he looked up tears in his bright blue eyes.

"NO!" Pitch shouted. He blasted shadows at Jack.

Jack screamed in pain. "DON'T LET HIM TAKE ME! PLEASE!" Jack collapsed onto the ground.

Sandy stepped forward and blasted golden sand at Jack. It countered the nightmare sand, but now the battle was evenly matched. No one was backing down. Jamie burst through the sand and hugged Jack tightingly, cradling him. "It's gonna be OK," he whispered.

Chapter 12

Jack Frost stood at his lake. Half of his body was evil, the other half good. But somehow, he could think clearly. In one side of the lake was his sister. She waved at him to come over. He started to walk across the frozen lake to her.

"Jack!"

Jack spun around and saw Jamie on the other side. "J-Jamie?"

"Jack come on!" Jamie said.

"But my sister-"

"Your the only one who can stop Pitch Black! "

"But I love her!"

"You love me to, right?"

"I can't choose between you!" Jack cried.

"There is no other choice Jack!" jamie ran across the pond at JAck's sister, and waved a hand. It went right through her!

"What?" Jack gasped.

"She's just a bunch of shadow!" Jamie said. He hugged Jack tight. "When you wake up, please....be the Jack that chose me..."

****

Jack Frost slowly opened his eyes. The guardians looked down t him. He sat up and rubbed his eyes.

"J-Jack?" Tooth gasped.

Jack's hair was snow white, his hoodie and eyes blue.

"Why are you looking at me like that?" Jack Frost groaned.

"JACK!" The guardians tackled him with hugs.

"Whoa Whoa!" Jack gasped.

"Your back!" the guardians cheered.

After what felt like forever, they finally let Jack go.

"What happened?" Jack asked.

"You don't remember?" North checked his skull.

"Jack, you were evil!" Tooth said. "You helped kidnapped the fairies, create a huge snowstorm, and give children multiple nightmares!"

"And you almost turned me to ice!" Bunny said.

Jack was shocked. "Aw Guys, he said. "I am so so so so so sorry! I had no idea I was doing any of that! All I remember was...seeing my sister a lot." then he saw Jamie. "Jamie! What are you doing here?"

"He helped bring you back!" Tooth said.

"Jack, can you remember where Pitch hid the fairies?" Jamie asked, handing him a snow globe portal maker.

Jack nodded slowly. "I think so,"

Chapter 13

(I was getting tired at this point please forgive me)

The guardians arrived at a door. It was all black, and a skull pattern was all over it.

"I think this is it," Jack said.

"You think?" Bunny asked.

"Hey, I barely remember anything!" Jack said.

North busted the door down. "Screw the element of surprise!" he shouted.

Sandy facepalmed.

"North! Shut up!" Jack covered his mouth.

A shadow fell across the already dark room, and a booming voice was heard: "Why hello Jack," it said. "Returned, have you?"

"Where are the Tooth fairies?" Bunny called out. "We know you have them!"

Pitch appeared in front of them. "Jack, we could have ruled the world!" he ranted. "We could've-"

Jack smacked him across the face. "No," he said.

Pitch growled, and dove back into the shadows.

"We don't need him!" Jack grunted. "I think I can remember where he's holding them!"

The guardians followed Jack all over Pitch's lair, until they reached a large ballroom, with cages hanging above them: All filled with fairies! The guardians tried to open them, but they were locked.

"There has to be a way to get them out!" Bunny cried.

"Why, if only you had the key!" Pitch appeared, holding a gold key in his hand.

"Gimme that!" Tooth rushed over to him, trying to snatch it.

Pitch jumped into the shadows, appearing behind her and knocking her to the ground, unconscious.

"Tooth!" the guardians cried.

Jack blasted ice out of his staff and it wacke Pitch, making Pitch drop the key. Bunny quickly picked the key and Tooth up.

"Jack! Think about what your doing!" Pitch cried. "If you defeat me, you'll never see your family again!" Pitch waved his hand, and an image of his sister appeared. She smiled happily.

Jack loosened his grip on his staff.

"She's not real Jack!" North said.

"Don't you want to be with her Jack?" Pitch asked. "Forever and ever?"

Jack shook his head, and blasted so much ice at Pitch, it froze him cold!

(As I said, I was tired.)

"I already have one!" Jack gestured to the guardians and smirked.

Chapter 14

Jack sat back in his tree, making small snowflakes that fell to the ground slowly. Pitch was gone, and his head was finally clear. It took deep, long breaths, in hopes of staying calm. He was trying to think back to what must've happened when he was supposably evil. He barely remembered anything! He could see bits and pieces of the guardians, globes, and his sister.

"Jack!"

Jack looked down and Jamie stood below at the tree.

"Hey Jamie!" Jack Frost smiled.

"I missed you a lot Jack!" Jamie said. "I'm glad your back."

Jack smiled. "Me too, kid."

"Me too."

THE END

Thank you

Thanks for reading! More Dreamworks genre fanfics on the way!
Who knows? MAYBE A VOLTRON FANFIC IS NEXT!